The services we deliver at TopRatedProfessors.com

At TopRatedProfessors.com, we give an opportunity to our consumers to place orders, communicate to each other, work on orders, deliver the products and finally do payment transfer for the products already delivered to them.

Before a consumer can use any of our services, they must first create an account with us before proceeding. We always make the identity of our consumers anonymous at all times and as such, sharing any personal information that might uniquely identify you as a consumer is highly prohibited. TopRatedProfessors.com reserves the right to close any access to your account whenever there is enough reason to do so especially if you use abusive language to other consumers, share your personal information and contacts to other consumers, spam or break the Terms and Conditions of this website in any other way not stated above.

We only offer services to our consumers for their own personal and non-commercial use. As such, we strictly prohibit any purchase of our products for commercial use. We own the authorship rights of all products delivered by our freelance consumers. We recommend that you check for quality of your product delivered to you by our freelance writers since payments are non-refundable after accepting the product. Our services are only meant to help you learn how to go about your tasks as a consumer and therefore should not be regarded as your own work at any given time. We do not condone academic cheating, and as such, you cannot submit our products for grading as it is not your original work. We do not give any warranty or guarantee to consumers concerning our products, and as such, it is your duty as the consumer to check for the quality of your work. Kindly make sure you take note of these Terms and Conditions before proceeding to place an order with us.

Provision for Refund

The customer should read through the product before releasing 100% of the funds to the writer. By releasing 100% of the funds, the customer agrees that he/she had read through the entire product and is satisfied with it. As such, he/she agrees that he will not require any further revision on the same order. In case one might need a revision on such order, he/ she will have to place a new order and make payment for the same. Funds released after delivery of our products are not warranted or guaranteed in any way and are completely non-refundable. The customer should take the time to read through the product and decide whether he/ she needs any form of revision before releasing the funds to the writer as no refund can be made after that. After 100% release of funds, there can be no further communication made to the writer concerning the order. In case the customer does not release 100% of the funds after downloading the final paper, the funds will be automatically released to the writer 72 hours after the deadline and the order will be considered as complete, and therefore the writer will not take any further revisions on the same order.

At our own discretion, we might decide to refund the customer especially when they have enough reason to claim a refund. We have a money back guarantee policy that you can read on our FAQ page.
